Indie Filmmaker Legal Docs CDROM

Product Review in Indie Slate Magazine

Pleasanton, CA – Oct 13, 2004 – Red Diamond Media, LLC announced the Indie Legal Docs CDROM is being reviewed by Indie Slate magazine (October 2004) in a full-page article titled “Legal Eye for the Movie Guy”

The Indie Legal Docs CDROM is a concise collection of 11 key releases and contracts used by professional studios, filmmakers, screenwriters and videographers for video, television and film productions. Available for $34.95 at www.indielegaldocs.com.

The Mac/PC compatible CDROM contains the following documents:

- Project Nondisclosure Agreement
- Consent and Release Form
- Location Release Form
- Professional Services/Contractor Agreement
- Screenwriter Contract
- Screenplay Option to Produce Contract
- Production Joint Venture Agreement
- Video Production Distribution Agreement
- Public TV Program Production Agreement
- Network TV Special Event Production Agreement
- TV Series License Agreement

The CDROM based documents are easy to download and customize with any Mac/PC word program. For more product information visit www.indielegaldocs.com.

“The product has two very clear benefits,” said Scott Patterson, Production Manager at Red Diamond Media “the first is easy and early access to important contracts related to their project, the second is a clear understanding and appreciation for the legal complexity of the industry and the need for experienced legal counsel on their team. In the beginning of a production it may seem like contracts add little value, but once a production is picked up, the contracts become almost more important than the production itself. I’ve heard so many stories of Indie projects that crashed because of oversight in this area. The contracts on this CD are the result of years of industry networking and expensive legal services. We are not attorneys, and not giving legal advice. We are an independent video production company just sharing with others what we are using and trying to raise the awareness of fellow Indies. For a project to survive you need to think beyond your tripod, lighting and sound.”
